Reaching more youth, more often

Due to location, transportation, lack of understanding, interest, and other barriers, most youth in America will never attend a physical Boys & Girls Club. In general, Clubs across the country serve around 4% of all youth in America. What about the other 96%?

In 2024 alone, the Virtual Club reached more than 7 million people and served hundreds of thousands of youth and families across the country.

The Virtual Club can help Club organizations across the country provide innovative programming to current Club youth, and it can provide accessible resources to non-Club families.

How? Virtual Club content is designed for anyone, not just Club youth. The Virtual Club creates, designs, and shares content in a way that is accessible to all youth and families across America, whether they're familiar with the Club or not.

Clubs can use the Virtual Club's printables as free handouts at recruitment events or community nights; Clubs can use the Virtual Club's blog posts as educational resources for families and teens; Clubs can use the Virtual Club's videos for in-person programming or by sharing them with community members who are searching for engaging, youth-friendly content online; and so much more. All Clubs are free to use Virtual Club content for their own Clubs and in their own communities to reach new families.

Strengthening the Club brand

Creating free and open access to the Virtual Club has helped us see its tremendous marketing value. By creating high-quality online resources available to all youth and families, we strengthen our collective position as the leading Youth Development Organization in America, and we create a larger entry point for new families to experience the Club. Most youth in America do not have access to a Boys & Girls Club. Most families in America are not familiar with the true depth of Boys & Girls Club programming. However, more youth and families than ever before have access to the internet. By carving out an approachable and accessible space for the Club online, we can strengthen our brand and visibility across the country.

Leveraged appropriately, this increased visibility can turn into:

High-quality direct Club programming for youth and families	Innovative program resources for Clubs	New individual and corporate donor engagement opportunities	Increased marketing, awareness, and an elevated energy around the Club brand

The Virtual Club presents a unique and timely opportunity for all Clubs. Youth and families are struggling with significant challenges, and we can't rely on their ability to visit a Club site as the only way we can serve them. We can do more. We can create bold solutions to meet the demands of our changing world. Virtual Club is not the only solution, but understanding its full value on a national scale can create significant change, helping us to empower more youth than ever before.
